ACKNOWLEDGMENT

For kind and thoughtful aid and generous consideration in the preparation of this work, I owe a deep debt of gratitude and appreciation to the courteous, efficient and helpful staffs of the Minnesota Department of Conservation, Lands and Minerals, State Office Building, St. Paul; the Library of Congress, the National Archives, the Coast and Geodatic Survey in the Commerce Department; and above all I owe special thanks to Chiefs Riley V. Lewis and V. Darnell, Tract Book Division, United States Bureau of Land Management, Department of Interior, who patiently guided me through the enormous volumes of land records, and to Mrs. Walsh in the D. A. R. Library, all of whom persistently emphasized accuracy in making this copy identical with the original records.

The U. S. Census Bureau generously granted me permission to use the Minnesota Territorial Census of 1950, the first taken, and that of 1857.

FOREWORD

This fine tribute to the pioneers is used with Governor Youngdahl's permission.

EXCERPTS FROM GOVERNOR LUTHER W. YOUNGDAHL'S ADDRESS TO A JOINT SESSION OF THE MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE IN A CENTENNIAL COMMEMORATION FOR ESTABLISHMENT DAY OF THE TERRITORY OF MINNESOTA, MARCH 3, 1949:

". . . The pioneers who had made their way to this frontier country, fortunately, were of hardy spirit and filled with hope. They were a people proud to be Americans. They cherished freedom under a government of law and order. They desired fervently the opportunity to work together in building out of this wilderness a state that could contribute its full share of human and material resources to the nation they loved . . .

"The greatness of the time, in its very essence, must be sought among the common people--the 'common people' who were, of necessity, most uncommon--uncommonly resourceful, energetic, and courageous.

"To these pioneers we are deeply indebted for the care, the vision, and the courage which they applied in laying the foundations of our commonwealth. They had eagerly sought the opportunity to set up a territorial government and once that chance came they did not delay in setting up sound democratic government for the good of all the people . . .

"If our spirits be sensitive, we can catch some meaning from the past, and learn a lesson from the pioneer.

"There was in them a loyalty to this our land. These people were Americans before they came to these shores--theirs was the idealism and inflexible purpose which are particularly American, and by them was the state and nation built. In their spirit can our patriotism find its highest nobility. . . "

CHISAGO COUNTY

"Ki-chi-saga" is the Indian name from which this county derives its name. The French voyageurs, possibly led by Sieur Du Lhut, were the first white arrivals in St. Croix Valley. In 1703 they built a trader's fort south of the Dalles. In the 19th century came the New England woodcutters who drove out the French and broke the Indian dominion over this region. In 1837 Joseph R. Brown directed the clearing of the site now occupied by Taylors Falls. The town was so named after Jesse Taylor who came there in 1838 in partnership with Benjamin F. Baker from Fort Snelling. He bought out the remaining French trader Monsieur Robinet. Ansel Smith, another leading New Englander came in 1852. Soon lumbering was in full swing and ruined the habitat of Mr. Van Renselaer a hermit scholar who had settled here in search of complete solitude. In 1850 came the Swede Eric Norberg who was inspired to bring a group of Swedish Colonists the next year. They arrived in June by boat at Taylors Falls and cut their way through the pine forests and took possession of the shores of the beautiful Chisago Lake. Rev. Unonius arrived as minister in the colony and joined Norberg as the settlements publicity agents in the Swedish press. Soon Swedes predominated in the region. In 1852 through the leadership of William H. C. Folsom of Taylors Falls and Hon. Ansel Smith of Franconia the legislature granted a petition for forming Chisago County out of the original Washington County. Thereupon developed a community here that became a replica of Sweden. But the settlers also became good Americans. It has been said, "The quickest of all nationalities to assimilate American Citizenship are the Swedes, yet they preserved their native language, culture and tradition". In May 1854 came to this Minnesota settlement the great Lutheran crusader Dr. Eric A. Norelius whose immortal memory endures in this great northern park region woodland. So much of Chisago County's history is a history of what might be called New Sweden.

PINE COUNTY

Pine County was a part of St. Croix County, Wisconsin in 1849 when Minnesota Territory was organized. For a time it was a part of both Ramsey and then Chisago County. Pine County was organized in 1854 and included Kanabec and Carlton Counties till 1858. Chengwatana by Cross Lake became the County seat. In 1872 Pine City became the County seat. The first County Commissioners were Herman Trott, Royal C. Grey and George W. Staples. Traders and trappers inhabited the region. In 1816 Thomas Connors built a trading post to succeed the French post there fifty years before. The Presbyterian Rev. Frederick Ayer established the first mission here on Lake Pokeganna about 1836. This mission is reported to have had the first printing press in Minnesota. The lumbermen early found the great forest pineries in this vast northern woodland domain. After them came the farmers. Royal C. Grey raised the first crops in 1858. For a long time the outstanding event in the memory of most settlers in this section was the tragic Hinckley Forest Fire of 1894 which destroyed the town and 413 people.

WASHINGTON COUNTY

Washington County has the honor of being Minnesota's oldest County, this was the original Minnesota County. The St. Croix River forms the eastern boundary and the Mississippi forms the southern boundary of Washington County. DuLuth led a party of French and Indians down the St. Croix in 1680. In 1805 Lieutenant Zebulon Pike ascended the St. Croix as a part of his exploration of Louisiana territory as ordered by President Jefferson. Washington County was then a part of the old Northwest Territory. About 1800 it became a part of Indian Territory, then for a time it was a part of Crawford County in Michigan Territory with Prairie du Chien as County seat. In 1836 Wisconsin Territory was created and Crawford County, bordering on the Mississippi, was included therein. The Indian Treaty signed at Fort Snelling in 1837 opened the St. Croix Valley to white settlements and its pineries for lumbering. The next year Franklin Steele led the traders and Joseph R. Brown the loggers. The latter settled near the present city of Stillwater and built the trading settlement Dahkotah which became the County seat. Mr. Brown won election to the Wisconsin territorial legislature in 1839 and 1841. The first County Commissioners were Calvin A. Tuttle, Samuel Burkleo and Hagen Mooers. Here in the early years came James S. Norris, John Haskell, Alexander McHattie and Lemuel Bolles and left their permanent impression on the growing new born community. In 1839 Hiram Berkey, Joseph Cottrell, George B. Judd, Lewis R. Albert, Orange Walker, A.C.S. Parker, James M. Parker, William B. Dibble, Samuel Burkleo and David Hone founded Marine Mills on the St. Croix, named after their old home in Marine, Ill. In the St. Croix Valley Jacob Fahlstrom a famous early Swede settled. A monument in his honor stands on the river bank near the St. Paul City Hall.

Fahlstrom came to Fort Snelling from Lord Selkirk's Red River Colony. He became a convert of the Kaposia Methodist Mission in charge of Rev. Alfred Bronson who said "Conversion of this one man and his family is worth the whole cost of the mission". Fahlstrom became one of Washington County's earliest preachers. Rev. Wm. T. Boutwell who with Schoolcraft discovered and named Lake Itasca in 1834 lies buried here on his former farm. Stillwater's first white woman resident was Mrs. Carli. The first saw mill at Stillwater was built by John McKusick, Calvin F. Leach, Elam Greeley and Elias McKean. Anson Northrup built the first hotel in Washington County in 1844. Sylvester Stateler the first blacksmith came in 1842. On August 4, 1848 Minnesota's first political meeting was held at Stillwater with the purpose of establishing Minnesota Territory. Leaders in this movement were Joseph R. Brown, M.S. Wilkinson, Calvin Leach, William Holcombe, Robert Kennedy, David Lambert, Henry H. Sibley, Henry Jackson, H.L. Moss, Samuel Burkleo and Joshua L. Taylor. On August 13, 1849 the first Court in Minnesota Territory was held in Washington County. The first Territorial Legislature in September 1849 organized and named Washington County. Stillwater was designated the County seat. The original size and shape of the County has been retained with little variation. The first officers of the County were: John S. Proctor, Clerk and Register of Deeds; Socrates Nelson, Treasurer; Jesse Taylor, Sheriff; Harvey Nelson, Surveyor, Clerk of the District Court and Judge of Probate; William Willim, Coroner; Mortimer S. Wilkinson, Prosecuting Attorney; William H. Johnson, Mahlon Black and Benjamin F. Otis, Road Supervisors; Asa Parker, Calvin Leach and Harvey D. White, Assessors; and John McKusick, Hiram Berkey and Joseph Haskell, County Commissioners.
